TUESDAY AUGUST 6, 1803. The Virginia Democratic State Con-

deposit their ballots we cannot foretell. It ought, however, to be regarded as a significant fact that the county and city meetings held to select delegates to the State Convention performed this duty, and left all questions as to creeds to be disposed of Very few counties, if any. undertook to block out work for the State concluded that they want no platform, or else feel that they ought to entrust the luty of creeting one to the State Convention itself, or else to the Democratic leaders in the two houses of Congress.

If the State Convention lays down a declaration on the subject of the curreney. If we do not know what we hold as to the difficult questions involved in the currency problem, then let us say noth-But if we are for the free coinage of to the ante-bellum banking system, let us say so. If we prefer the present system of backs to State-bank notes and to nationalbank notes, let us say so. And as there is no good reason to hope that a bill to reil the Sherman silver law will be passed before our State Convention meets, we might once more denounce that "makeshift" as a fraud upon the people. In a word, if we must have a platform, let us have one that is worthy of the name.

But it would be a rare spectacle to see the administration in Washington calling upon the Republicans in Congress to aid the Democrats in repealing the Sherman silver law, and at the same time de tors of that measure. At present the in-dications are that the Sherman law will be repealed by the combination referred tothat is, by the efforts of Democrats and Republicans in the two houses of Con-

Again: What is the creed of the Demoerats of Virginia touching an incometax? We have repeatedly seen it stated in Democratic papers that the Chicago convention pledged the Democratic party to enactment of a law taxing incomes. This is a mistake. That convention did thinker, the incomparable Murat Hatnot declare for a graduated income-tax: stran." Score one for the Field Marshal. but the fact is not material to the issue. If the Democrats of Virginia favor taxing all incomes exceeding five thousand dollars, let them say so. Do not leave it an open question, to cause a wrangle upon every stump, as to whether they are for exempting small incomes or not. But let the limit of exemption be stated in the platform. If the Democrats of Virginia lay down a platform the income-plank cannot well be thrown aside. Once more: There is heard in some quarters the charge that the Democrats are in favor of levying customs-duties for revenue only, and will therefore tax our breakfast tables. In a word, that they will lay a high tariff upon sugar, tea, coffee, and other articles which produce a large revenue. Governor VANCE says that the present is "a rich-man's panic." But we think that the Democrat who proposes to tax our breakfast tables will find himself encircled by "a poor-man's panic." Nevertheless, if we feel that we must have a local or State platform, as well as a local or State currency, then let us say so.

These are only a few of the many subjects that may appropriately be treated in a platform if we erect one.

The Greeley Proposition-

We stated the other day that an Ohio congressman intended to introduce into the national House of Representatives a bonds bearing a low rate of interest to be exchanged for currency whenever the bolder of the bonds desired to have it so exchanged, the interest to stop possession of the Federal Government. This law would be expected to regulate the currency automatically. That is to say, if a New York bank needed greenbacks and had a milhon of dollars of United States bonds the bank might take its bonds to the United States sub-Treasury and demand for them million of dollars in greenbacks And when "the pressure was lifted" the bank would return the greenbacks and receive back the bonds, which would again become interest-bearing bonds. But realization. For the holder of the bonds instead of exchanging them for greenthus keep the interest on them running. The government would thus convert its bonds into currency and have to pay interest upon this currency. This, we repeat, is Honace GREELEY's scheme, which, for the reason stated, or some other rea son, never gained the favor of the public.

The Atlanta Constitution publishes letters from the editors of the Democratic weeklies in Georgia, and upon them bases the assertion that the editors of Georgia are practically unanimous in declaring that the Democratic platform must be carried out; that the demand for tariff reform must be ratified; and that the piedge of netallism must be redeemed.

Rev. Dr. John Hannon, who recently made a speech at his own marriage recoption at San Jose, Cal., said that doubtless one reason why there is no marrying or giving in marriage in Heaven is that there are not enough men there to go around. The same scarcity is observable at the better authority than the Constitution of Jeorgia. That instrument provides that houses of Congress as to the time of adjournment the President may adjourn them to such time as he shall think pro-

Verbal Stumbling.

The Atlanta Constitution stumbles over mere words when it says:
"The government does not impart value to either silver or gold, but, by opening its mints to these metals it gives them their proper use and function, creates a demand for their employ-ment as media of exchange. It is this increased and calarged use that imparts the value."

Read that again : It is "the increased and enlarged use" that "imparts the value," and this "increased and colarged use" is caused by the government, or in other words, by legislation, and yet the Constitution says that neither the government nor legislation imparts value to silver

Again, the Constitution claims that the government does not impart value to silver or gold, yet proceeds in the same sentence to say that the government "gives them their proper use and function" and "creates a demand for them as media of exchange." When the government gives to them "their proper use and function" it "imparts value" to them.

We submit to our Atlanta contemporary that it is hopelessly in the dark, not we. Every monometallist paper repeats in substance the language employed by the Constitution. All of them unite in declaring that "the vital spark has fled," but all of vention—Platforms.

Next week the Democrats of Virginia will assemble in State Convention for the purpose of nominating candidates to be voted for in November next for the offices of Governor, Lieutenant-Governor, and value" to silver, gold, or greenbacks, but to that State Convention will or will not consider it their duty to lay down a platform for the voters to record on the voters to We beg our monometallist contempora-ries everywhere not to lose sight of the explanations which we have quoted above from the Atlanta Constitution. We have our misgivings as to the absolute accuracy of the information of those of the Washington correspondents who are undertaking to give an outline of the envention to do. Either the people have President's message, but we are prepared to expect that in that paper the President will have something to say about the repeal of "the SHERMAN law," though he may not make use of that popular-or perhaps we should say unpopular-term. The message will probably be sent to platform, it must make its widest plank a Congress to-day. This much we can state officially—it contains 2,200 words, which would make about one and a half columns of reading in the Disparen's usual readingmatter type-minion.

According to the New York Worle's Washington correspondent, Mr. CLEVELAND expects that the vote in the Senate on the unconditional repeal of the SHERMAN bill will be 47 to 41. Among the 41 "noes" it places Senators Daniel, Hunton, Vance. FAULENER, and RANSOM.

The same correspondent learns that the opponents of free coinage expect the vote to be "for repeal" 42; "against repeal,"

He says, also, that of the favorable action of the House there can be no doubt at all.

The Hampton News urges as a suitable candidate for the House of Delegates Maor BAKER P. LEE, whom it describes as 'an eloquent and convincing speaker," " Democrat under any and all circumstances," and a man of such dignity, ability, and force of character that he would confer an honor and an obligation on the party by accepting its nomination." Major Lee, who is known all over the State, was at one time after the war editor of the Richmond Enquirer.

PULASE, VA., August 7.—Fire broke out about 6 o'clock yesterday morning in the large building of Miller & Warden, on Commerce avenue. Simoke was pouring out of the building. In a few minutes our efficient fire company was on hand, and for some hour or more threw a great deal of water upon the bouse and through all three stories, at the end of which time the fire was entirely extinguished.

E. B. Hatcher & Co., clothlers, oxcupied the entire ground floor, and their $10,000 atook on hand was almost entirely lost. Miller & Warden occupied the second floor and Odd-Fellows and o'her secret societies occupied the third floor. The second and thrift floors were but little injured. The damage to the house is estimated at some $7,000 or $8,000. Insurance on the building for $5,000, and Hatcher & Co. also have agent here.

The cause of the fire is unknown. There was as,000 insurance with B. E. waison, insurance egoni here.

The cause of the fire is unknown. There was kept a burning ismp in the building and some think it may have exploded. This is a mistorium, as this building was one of the handsomest in southwest Virginta. However, it will be thoroughly repaired at once. Mr. Hatcher is our largest civitier and a Pulaski pioneer, and his loss is deeply regretted, other buildings immediately adjoining this were unlurt. The fire company did admirably.
